INTRODUCTION

FROM THE DIRECTOR’S DESK

Dear UC San Diego Community Members:

Annually, UC San Diego is recognized as one of the top ten (10) public universities in the United States. We all agree it is notable that a young institution like UC San Diego has attained such a high level of recognition within a short time. We also agree that this status was accomplished through the hard work and commitment to excellence on the part of our supervisors, managers, faculty, and staff.

Critical to sustaining a high level of excellence are supervisors and managers who are charged with retaining, training, motivating, and developing staff. One of their leadership strategies has been to encourage staff to pursue professional growth opportunities such as those provided by UC San Diego Career Connection - a comprehensive career development program.

Career Connection offers Tools For Success, Career Planning and other related workshops at accessible sites on campus, School of Medicine, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, Library, Auxiliary & Plant Services and Health System facilities. At these workshops, information on other career development resources is provided such as Staff Education and Development, DisAbility Counseling and Consulting, and financial assistance for training. Other Career Connection services include mentoring, individual career consultations, internships, and informational interview referrals.

We attribute much of the success of Career Connection to the feedback and suggestions provided by supervisors, managers and staff. It is important that we represent the community of interests at UC San Diego, so please continue to contact us via phone at (858) 822-2633 or e-mail at career@ucsd.edu with your thoughts.

Again, we sincerely appreciate your continued support of Career Connection and encourage you to attend workshops for resource information.

HOW TO BEGIN

To: Mentors and Mentees

This is the recommended process to follow when beginning to meet with your mentee/mentor.

After you have registered on https://mentorship.ucsd.edu/, you will be matched with a mentor/mentee. Please begin the process by reviewing this Staff Mentorship Program Guidebook. Exchange relevant contact information and call your mentee/mentor to discuss the most suitable times and places for getting together, i.e. lunch, after work, before work, at your location or at his/her work location.

Mentors: Please provide your Mentee with a daytime phone and schedule on your time availability to take calls or meet. If possible get together for lunch meeting. This is always a good icebreaker.

Mentees: Prepare for meeting with your mentor. Have a copy of your most current resume and Individual Development Plan (IDP). Make a list of your interests, experiences, and career objectives to discuss. Your career objectives are very important because that is where your focus and resources should be directed.

Mentors: Go over the Career Connection workshop schedule, other Staff Education resources (available online at http://uclearning.ucsd.edu) and encourage your mentee to pursue any workshops that will assist them with their Individual Development Plan (IDP). Use the log provided to identify career development resources and any workshops that would enhance your mentee’s skills/knowledge to help them reach their career objectives here at UC San Diego.

Mentees: Please be willing to accept constructive feedback from your Mentor related to your resume and career goals and objectives.

Mentors and Mentees: Be available to each other for progress meetings, working sessions, and follow-up activities. It is important that you value this process and grow in a positive direction.

Please feel free to contact the Career Connection Program Coordinator at career@ucsd.edu or (858) 822-2633 if you have any questions or concerns during your mentorship experience.

ROLE OF THE COORDINATOR

UC San Diego Career Connection has a steering committee that reviews all levels of workshop and program services on the part of staff. One of the committee members is assigned the task of coordinating the mentorship component, which involves:

- Reviewing the list of people who have registered to be a mentee
- Identifying a mentor who most closely fits the mentee’s occupational goals and objectives
- Taking every opportunity to recruit mentors in staff associations, UC San Diego departments or those identified by staff as possible participants
- Providing orientation workshops for potential mentors from various staff associations
- Sending out official notice to the mentee and mentor regarding the match, including a Staff Mentorship Program Guidebook
- Compiling information in a mentor/mentee database
- Coaching for mentors regarding their mentee or program issues
- Encouraging mentees to become a mentor to others
- Recognition of the mentors by sending them a copy of an official letter that is sent to their respective Vice Chancellor each year of participation
ROLE OF THE MENTOR

MENTORS - YOU HAVE BEEN MATCHED!

You have been matched up with someone who requested your specific background and/or experience. Your role starts with sharing your professional background and/or experiences with your mentee, so they can appreciate what you have had to encounter and overcome. Through this, you develop and establish rapport, trust, and insight into how diverse our society and community has become. Sharing yourself is critical in helping others grow closer to their dream and what they are capable of being. Share your observations of positive behaviors and attitudes that are important in the workplace. It is important to keep in mind that through respect and support, your talent, knowledge, and ideas makes a difference in another person’s professional growth and development.

As a mentor, you will find yourself being a guide, a demonstrator of new skills, and a coach reinforcing positive accomplishments. You have the opportunity to encourage and guide a fellow employee in a direction that will enhance their career. This interaction will allow your mentee to learn. There may be an opportunity for you and your mentee to expose each other to cultural aspects of UC San Diego: theater, concerts, cultural fairs, ethnic foods, and various staff associations. These are just a few ideas.

We recognize that it takes commitment to guide a fellow employee in aspects of career development. The process of mentoring within a relationship of trust and respect can be mutually beneficial.

In the final analysis, you will see your mentee grow, develop, and become self-actualizing.

Thanks to You………..

MENTORING PRACTICES

- The mentor relationship is one in which a person sees the potential for the growth and development of another and assumes the responsibility for nurturing this potential.

- Mentoring occurs when a more-experienced professional gives significant career assistance to a less-experienced one during a period of transition.

- Mentoring is hard work. Mentors who expect to walk in and waltz out as heroes and miracle workers are in for a surprise. In many cases, mentoring is an endurance test.

- A mentor must be able to see the mentee as a separate person with different needs and goals and must be comfortable with those differences.

- The mentor suggests standards of performance, usually high ones, and gives the mentee assistance and self-confidence in reaching them.

- Mentors should be honest, committed, respectful of their mentees, and willing to share themselves.

- Effective evaluation is a significant trait of a good mentoring relationship.

- A mentor should assist their mentee in assessing their strengths and their weaknesses, encourage them to take risks and to learn from their mistakes.

- One of the most significant contributions a mentor may make is to help the mentee develop a life’s dream and to move toward the realization of this dream.
STRATEGIES FOR EFFECTIVE MENTORING

- Positive Attitude

  Encourage the mentee to approach life and goals with enthusiasm and to be accepting of self and others.

- Valuing

  Encourage a person to examine beliefs and ideals in an effort to establish personal values and goals

- Open-Mindedness

  Encourage a person to keep open to new ideas

- Interrelations

  The interactions between mentor and mentee should be situations of sharing, caring, and empathizing

- Creative Problem Solving

  Encourage the mentee to use a creative problem solving process

- Effective Communication

  Encourage a person to be an attentive listener and an assertive questioner

- Discovery

  Encourage the mentee to be an independent thinker

- Strengths and Uniqueness

  Encourage a person to recognize individual strengths and uniqueness and to build on them

- Confidence

  Assist a person in developing self-confidence

- Awareness

  Stress that an individual be aware of the environment, be intuitive, be problem sensitive, and be ready to make the most of opportunities

- Risk-Taking

  Encourage a person to be a risk-taker and an active participant, not a spectator

- Flexibility

  Share with a mentee the importance of being flexible and adaptable in attitudes and actions, looking for alternatives, and seeing situations/persons from different perspectives
TIPS FOR GUIDING CAREER DISCUSSIONS

- Schedule meetings with your mentee thoughtfully. You will be more effective by meeting in a different area and setting aside special meeting times. Agree on your agenda or topic in advance.

- Maintain realistic expectations of your mentee. Recognize your mentee, as an individual; progress may not come as quickly as you prefer.

- Ask questions to encourage thought and discussion. Encourage your mentee to become an independent thinker.

- Follow your mentee’s train of thought. Be flexible enough to drop your own train of thought when it is not appropriate in the conversation.

- Be an active listener. Clarify your mentee’s feelings. Recognize and honor differences in values, opinions, ideas, cultures, etc.

- Give direct feedback. Be honest in your evaluation of your mentee’s skills and talents necessary for a particular career move.

- Present alternatives for consideration. Provide your mentee with a fresh perspective about concerns and questions.

- Summarize the important points that were made during your meeting. Review your plan of action to make sure it is clear and means the same to each of you.

- Be aware of the tension that is part of the mentor-mentee process. Recognize that change is uncomfortable and be patient.

- Follow up on commitments made to each other.

- End the meeting only after all the important issues have been covered. Agree on goals for the next meeting. Record your commitments and accomplishments on the Mentorship Six-Month Log.

ROLE OF THE MENTEE

Never Stop Dreaming

“It must be borne in mind that the tragedy of life does not lie in not reaching your goals; the tragedy lies in not having any goals to reach. It isn’t a calamity to die with dreams unfulfilled, but it is a calamity not to dream. It is not a disaster to be unable to capture your ideals, but it is a disaster to have no ideals to capture. It is not a disgrace not to reach the stars, but it is a disgrace to have no stars to reach.”

Dr. Benjamin E. Mays

DON'T QUIT

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you’re trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
   When care is pressing you down a bit,
   Rest, if you must, but don’t you quit.

   Life is queer with its twists and turns,
   As every one of us sometimes learns,
      And many a failure turns about,
   When he might have won had he stuck it out;
   Don’t give up though the pace seems slow--
      You may succeed with another blow.
   Often the goal is nearer than
      It seems to a faint and faltering man,

   Often the struggler has given up,
   When he might have captured the victor’s cup,
And he learned too late when the night slipped down,
   How close he was to the golden crown.

   Success is failure turned inside out--
      The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
   And you never can tell how close you are,
   It may be near when it seems so far,
   So stick to the fight when you’re hardest hit--
   It’s when things seem worst that you must not quit.

SUSTAINING A BEST PRACTICE MENTORSHIP PROGRAM
Management Skills Assessment Program (MSAP): MSAP is designed to strengthen the engagement and preparation of UC supervisors, managers, and professionals. The 3–day, 2–night, off-site program is based on extensive research in the fields of management and organizational behavior and is comparable to other, more costly assessment programs. The MSAP is best suited for individuals who have demonstrated a management career path through education and/or experience. Eligibility factors: one or more years of service at UC (past probation, career status), supervisor support, and Assistant III-Supervisor, equivalent or above.

For more information, visit http://blink.ucsd.edu/go/msap.

Scholarships through the Staff Equal Opportunity Enrichment Program (SEOEP): Individual scholarship awards are available for career development training courses and activities. The maximum annual award is $500 per person. Funding is provided for training needed for career changes or career advancement at UC San Diego when identified as part of an employee’s career plan.

For more information, visit blink.ucsd.edu/go/seoep.

Mentoring is a component of Career Connection which provides an opportunity for a seasoned career employee (or retiree) to be matched up with a Career Connection participant. Employees may register to be a mentor or mentee at https://mentorship.ucsd.edu. Participants are encouraged to fill out a Individual Development Plan delineating their career objectives, professional goals, and specific steps needed to implement their career strategies. This Individual Development Plan is discussed with their mentor once a month for about an hour over a period of approximately six months.

At the conclusion of this six-month time frame, mentees (those individuals matched with a mentor) are encouraged to help others by participating as a mentor in the future. The “graduation” of mentees to mentors permits this program to continue to help other aspiring UC San Diego employees by meeting the ever-growing demand for mentors.
WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT CAREER DEVELOPMENT

There must be clarity in these areas:

1. Technical or job specific skills
2. Transferable skills
3. Personality aspects - preferences, attitude, behavior under stress, etc.
4. Career and work values
5. Career and work interests
6. Preferred work style

There are several possible career options:

- Promotion (moving up)
- Enrichment (adding tasks)
- Entrenchment (staying put)
- Transfer (moving out)
- Rotation (moving around)

CAREER PLANNING

Career goals should be SMART:

- Specific
- Measurable
- Attainable
- Realistic
- Tangible

A Individual Development Plan addresses these questions:

- What is the specific goal?
- Why is this the best goal?
- How will the goal be pursued?
- When will each step occur?

Your Guide to Individual Development Planning

Introduction

A commitment to continuously learning and developing knowledge and skills that are valued by the University opens the door to career options and makes you a more valuable employee. Ultimately, the responsibility for your professional development lies with you but the support of your manager or a mentor can foster the process. This guide explains your role in creating and directing your professional development and provides you with the tools to create and launch your Individual Development Plan.

The Individual Development Plan (IDP) is a tool to organize and target your professional and personal development. Its primary purpose is to help you reach short- and long-term career goals, as well as strengthen current job performance by providing a structured approach. IDP’s demonstrate intentional learning that is aligned with specific competencies, such as the UC Core Competencies, or with the mission, goals and objectives of an organization. With goal setting at its heart, a professional development plan organizes your ideas into a cohesive plan with defined timeframes and expected results. The UC San Diego IDP form is structured in such a way that will prompt you to identify learning activities that are experiential, social and classroom focused so that your development is well-rounded.

The Individual Development Planning Process

The individual development planning process is directed by you, in partnership with your manager, to enhance your professional growth. Two of the most common uses of the IDP are to help you advance in your career, or develop an increased level of competency in your current position. The annual performance appraisal meeting is typically the time when employees and their supervisors discuss IDP’s but they can be created at any time and should be reviewed and updated often.

The steps in the IDP planning process are:

Identify – Assess – Plan – Act - Evaluate

Identify

The first step in the IDP process is to have a clear picture of your career goals. This process is called career planning and it involves self-reflection and career exploration that helps you identify the career that will bring you the most job satisfaction. Once you’ve identified your career interest, you’ll be able to identify the related knowledge, skills, and competencies you need to develop in order to reach your career goal. The Career Connection program, offered through Equal Opportunity/Staff Affirmative Action, provides a comprehensive suite of workshops that lead you through this process. http://blink.ucsd.edu/HR/training/career/CC/index.html UC San Diego also makes available to all staff a free online assessment tool called SkillScan/Career Driver which provides a skill assessment to help you identify skill strengths and development opportunities. http://www.skillscan.com
Assess

Once you’ve identified the knowledge, skills, and competencies required of your career goal, you’ll need to assess your current competency in those areas. Again, the SkillScan/Career Driver online assessment tool can help. http://www.skillscan.com You may also want to review past performance appraisals and feedback you’ve received from your supervisor or others. Don’t forget that skill strengths can also continue to be developed.

Plan

The next step is to create the Individual Development Plan. The Completing the IDP section of this Guide provides the step-by-step process for creating the IDP. Once you’ve created your plan, you need to share it with your supervisor or a mentor. You should lead the conversation about your development goals but the plan should be mutually agreed upon by you and your supervisor or mentor. If you need help planning the conversation with your manager, contact Staff Education and Development, staffeducation@ucsd.edu, for guidance.

Act

Once the plan is in place, it is time to get busy completing the learning activities by the deadlines you’ve identified. Individual development often involves changing behaviors in addition to learning new ones. Research suggests that desired change is more likely to be successful when:

- The desired competency is specifically defined
- There is a commitment and motivation to the behavior change
- An action plan is shared with others (sharing your IDP with your supervisor or mentor)
- An analysis is made of the reason for potential lack of success
- Other people support your behavior change
- The behavioral outcomes are visible and can be measured

Use your calendar to highlight deadlines and schedule time with yourself each week to carrying out the learning activities in your plan. A minimum of 30 minutes a week is recommended. Address barriers as they arise and make adjustments to the plan as necessary.

Evaluate

Finally, you need to receive feedback on your progress and evaluate your success in meeting your development milestones. Set follow-up meetings with your manager or mentor. The duration and frequency will depend on specific needs but as a general guideline, a 30 minute meetings every 3 months is recommended.
Completing the Individual Development Plan

Once you have identified your career or professional goals and assessed your skills and knowledge on the related competencies required to meet the goal, you are ready to create your individual development plan.

Step One – IDP Worksheet Part One

Research shows that you increase your likelihood of obtaining a goal if you write it down and if it is written in a specific format. Part One of the IDP worksheet provides you with a structure for documenting your career or professional goal and your developmental goals. Write your developmental goals in the SMART style – Specific-Measurable-Attainable-Relevant-Timebound.

A developmental goal should have at least 2 – 3 developmental activities that you are able to complete in about 12 months. Start small, perhaps with just one developmental goal, to insure that you are successful in completing all your selected developmental activities.

Step Two – IDP Worksheet Part Two

This worksheet helps you structure the development activities that will build the skill, knowledge or competencies you have identified in our developmental goal. Research indicates that most learning in the workplace occurs on the job, not in the classroom, so resist the urge to devote 100% of your development to classroom or online learning. An effective IDP includes development activities that include learning by doing, learning from others, and classes, e-learning and readings. Staff Education and Development has resources to assist you in finding on-the –job development activities. Affirmative Action/Equal Employment Opportunity has programs that can connect you with mentors and internships.

Step Three – UC San Diego IDP

Complete the IDP by transferring the information from Part One and Two of the IDP Worksheets as appropriate. Add the following information:

Outcomes/Results: In detail describe what the successful completion of the developmental activity looks like. How will you know when the learning you have identified has been accomplished?

Support: Sharing goals with another person increases your likelihood of accomplishing the goal. Share your IDP with someone that can support you in your efforts by checking-in with you on a regular basis and providing you with feedback. Your supervisor is typically your best source of support but a mentor or coach can serve in the role as well.

Target Dates: This is a key part of the SMART goal style. Set reasonable target dates for completion of developmental activities so that you do not become unmotivated or overwhelmed. Start small and enjoy small successes.
Status: Use this area of the IDP to note completion of activities or identify potential barriers to completion that should be discussed with the individual supporting you with your IDP.

Record the date you discussed the plan with your supervisor, mentor or coach and set a date for a follow-up meeting. It is important to refresh your IDP often as goals change or new skill opportunities present themselves.

Should you need assistance in completing the UC San Diego IDP, please contact Staff Education and Development at staffeducation@ucsd.edu.
Complete Part One and Two of the UC San Diego IDP Worksheet and then summarize the information in the UC San Diego IDP form.
